SEBASTIAN JØRGENSEN

"It often strengthen the form and function of a piece of furniture if you pare it down to the bone and focus on the clear, simple idea! I'm very keen to see anything unnecessary cut away, so that the shape doesn't require too much explanation, but is so clear and obvious that it couldn't have been any other way, when you finally stand there with the finished product in front of you".

Having been an artist previously, Sebastian draw inspiration from the work methods that he practiced and refined in the past, and which have now been transformed into a way of viewing the thought process from initial concept to finished object.

MICHAEL SEBBER COLFELDT / SUPERFORM

Michael Sebbler Colfelt is a highly experienced and an Award-winning Senior Product Designer who primarily works within the fields of Product, Furniture, Lighting and Interface Design and Concept Development. Michael holds a Masters degree from The Royal Danish Academy of Art focused on Architecture and Industrial Design. Michael has held a position as external examiner at The Royal Danish Academy of Arts and has received a grant from Statens Kunstfond / The Danish Arts Foundation. During the design process good ergonomics and sustainability are equally important issues in his search for the best possible result. To Michael it's about finding the ultimate solution for his customers and not least the end-users who are to be in daily contact with the products that I design.

HANS THYGE & CO

For Hans Thyge & Co, all materials possess exciting properties that are to be challenged and brought out in the design process. They believe that design is a question of stimulating memories and dreams and paving the way for new design perspectives.

A product is so much more than the product itself, it is about creativity, vision, culture, company values, the past, the present and the future. Being an artist, musician or designer is about being able to transform all this heritage into imaginative images or forms. To tell stories that touch our emotions. When describing these stories, you need to be able to build up things in your mind or to let things come to your mind. If you then take the essence of this, Design is about "the power of imagination".

JONAS HØJGAARD ANDERSEN

"Scandinavian design is often labelled as being minimalistic. However I believe that holds some truth, but it is not the whole story. I strongly believe that the path of least resistance collides with what we in general perceive as great minimalistic design. It is a concept derived from nature, where resources are scarce and efficiency is key. I believe that a great design is complete, when you cannot remove anymore from it".

HANS SANDGREN JACOBSEN

"When I am working with designs I find innovation, aesthetics and functionality very important. It is important to innovate and to bring new thinking into existing designs. Innovation is for instance to use known materials for something new. I believe in "Less is more" – I believe that a piece of furniture is only to consist of the essential because then it will appear clean and simple – with international appeal. "Beauty depends on functionality" – this is what the Shakers said – and I agree. I am not making art but functional designs that can be used in people's every day life. I would never create a beautiful chair that was not comfortable to sit in.

Phillip Bro

Philip Bro Ludvigsen is a Danish industrial designer who has specialized in furniture, lighting and other products for the home interior. His designs are functional, yet their aesthetic is often playful, creating a connection with us that, over time, makes them an integral part of our everyday lives.
